

Adare Manor Club History

Adare Manor Golf Club is deeply intertwined with the heritage of Adare, one of Ireland's most charming and historic villages. Set amid a landscape shaped by centuries of settlement, the club is surrounded by landmarks such as the ruins of Desmond Castle, the medieval St. Nicolas Church and the ancient monastic sites that line the River Maigue. These reminders of Adare's past create a unique backdrop where village history and sporting tradition meet.

Golf arrived on the Adare Manor estate in the early 1900s, a period when the village was flourishing under the influence of the Dunraven family. The Earl of Dunraven, keen to enhance the amenities of the estate and community, invited renowned Scottish professional Ben Sayers to design the original course. What began as a modest layout soon became an essential part of village life, enjoyed by locals and visitors alike.

Over the decades, the course expanded and evolved, mirroring Adare's own growth as a vibrant village known for its thatched cottages, tree-lined streets and welcoming spirit. The golf club became not just a sporting venue, but a gathering place - woven into the rhythm of daily life and community events.

Today, Adare Manor Golf Club continues to reflect the charm and heritage of the village it calls home. Blending History, natural beauty, and a warm community atmosphere, it offers a memorable golfing experience in one of Ireland's most picturesque and storied settings.
